The Fed stunned markets in September by delaying a widely expected decision to scaleback its purchases, citing disappointing growth and hiring.